

LIFT BRIDGE STUCK.

Raised to Let a Tug Through
It Could Not Be Lowered.

New York Central Trains Delayed
Hours by the Accident.

The Old Drawbridge Used as a Makeshift.

An accident occurred to the new lift bridge of the New York Central Railroad over the Harlem River at 5.30 this morning that is giving the officials of the road a great deal of trouble and seriously delaying traffic for more than two hours.

At 5.30 the bridge was lifted to let a tug pass. When the engineer of the bridge reversed the engine to let the bridge down the machinery refused to work.

The bridge remained obstinately in the air, and all trains coming into and leaving the city were stopped.

The first train that got through finally was train No. 32, coming in. It was due at 6.05, but did not get into the station until 8.40, being over two hours behind its scheduled time.

All other trains were delayed from a half hour to two hours.

The lift bridge was put into use last Saturday. It is designed for temporary use only until the Company can build a new draw, which will not be finished for about a year and a half.

An old draw, of the ordinary pivot style, had been left alongside of the lift-bridge, and when the accident occurred this morning the officials had recourse to this old draw.

It required nearly three hours to put this in working order, so that trains could be moved over.

General Manager Franklin, of the Harlem River Division, made an investigation.

He found that several iron bars which held the balance weights in place in the bridge tower were broken.

A number of weights then came together, and hung in such a way as to make too great a weight for the engines to handle.

It will require two days to make the necessary repairs and put the bridge in working order again.

In the mean time the old drawbridge will be used. At noon all trains were run on schedule time.

Assaulted Her with a Hatchet.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 11.—The police are looking for Patrick Cavit, who is wanted for a murder assault on Mrs. Roach, with whom he boarded at Riverside, near East Hartford. Cavit and William Roach, the woman's husband, are employed in the Hartford, Conn. Company's Mill. Late last night Cavit came home, and, according to Mrs. Roach, struck her six blows on the back of her head with a hatchet. Her recovery is doubtful.

Comedian Charles Evans Ill.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 11.—Owing to the recent illness of Charles E. Evans, of the firm of comedians, Evans & Hays, who is suffering from acute malaria, it is probable that the firm will not be seen together after this season.

It may need an order from Richard Croker to get his name on the regular ticket.
